Queen's College Journal

Published weekly by the Alma Mater Society of Queen's University during the academic year.

A. E. ROSS, B.A., - Editor-in-Chief.
J. W. MUIRHEAD, B.A., - Managing Editor.
FRANK HUGO, B.A., - Business Manager.

The annual subscription is $1.00, payable before the end of January.

All literary contributions should be addressed to the Editor, Drawer 1104, Kingston, Ont.

All communications of a business nature should be addressed to the Business Manager.

WE were mistaken in saying that the lectures on Tennyson, which are being published in the Week, were by Professor Hume. Professor Clarke, of Trinity, is the author.

Fortnightly the "Bystander" may be expected to give an utterance upon the college affairs of the day. His criticisms may be harsh at times, but they will always be well-meant. Friendly comment, generous and just, should never give offence, and if his remarks are always received and acted upon in the spirit in which they are made, the aim of the editors in establishing the column will have certainly been attained.

We are glad to see from the Principal's address, published in this number, that during the holidays several bequests and subscriptions have come in. No university that we ever heard of considered that it had enough money, and Queen's is in this respect worse off than many others. Thus in Canada Toronto has the Province at its back; McGill has Montreal, where three-quarters of our Canadian millionaires are congregated; Munro and McLeod have been a bulwark to Dalhousie, whereas Queen's has nothing but its alumni. They indeed have never been found wanting; more unstinted liberality than they have shown it would be hard to find, but the fact remains that we have no body of rich men at our back, as the other three large Canadian universities have. In consequence, these gifts are doubly welcome. We hope that the proposed Lectureship in Political Science, bearing the name of Sir John Macdonald, to which a nucleus of $1,000 has already been contributed, will be a success. When that statesman died, the newspapers could talk of nothing else; hardly a conservative speaker has since mounted a platform without paying a tribute to his memory, and many reformers have done the same; surely for no object should subscriptions come in more readily. Kingston is his native city; he was one of the founders of Queen's, and always took in her the most friendly interest; Political Economy is the fittest subject with which to associate his name. Such a monument would be more lasting than brass or marble pillar, and though there is to be no canvassing for subscriptions, we hope that the friends of Queen's and of Sir John will respond freely.

The bequests of Mr. Fulton and Mr. Roberts will be most useful. Like the Principal, our only regret is that they are not alive to see the good their liberality will do. The gift of the British Exhibition Commissioners shows a spirit on their part of which it is more pleasant to hear than of their gift itself, although that is no small one. It will be a great encouragement to that very important department, Post Graduate Study. Queen's is the only Canadian university which has made any considerable move in that direction, and a number of graduates return each year to prosecute their studies, in spite of the far superior pecuniary advantages which American colleges offer. We hope that later on Scholarships of a similar kind will be instituted in Literature and Philosophy.

The officers of the A.M.S. will hold an open meeting next Saturday at 7.30. There will be a debate and a special paper may be read. The public are cordially invited.

✦Exchanges.✦

ONCE more the exchange editor, on behalf of himself and colleagues, bobs up and makes his bow to the world of College Journals. We are a little late this year, and our table has commenced to overflow, but notwithstanding the formidable appearance of the heap of literary matter before us we are heartily glad to see the familiar covers once more, and cordially welcome them all. Even the Flaming Sword is here, still alive and apparently flourishing, with a certain value of its own in the very grotesqueness of the ideas which it preaches as a new gospel. It, however, stands alone, all the rest being purely college papers, of which we need only notice one or two of the later arrivals.

'Varsity comes first, unsurpassed as a reflection of University life. In the number of Oct. 26th there are two articles which deserve notice, one a metrical translation of one of Horace's most celebrated odes by Mr. W. P. Reeve, and the other a timely (though none too well written) remonstrance concerning the numerous elegies on the death of the Laureate. We have been greatly surprised at the tame submission with which the reading world has appeared to resign itself to these so-called poems on the departure of Tennyson from the world of song. It may be our want of soul that occasions our lack of appreciation, but it seems to us a great pity that the ambitious elegists have not appreciated the truth enunciated by one of their number, viz., that

"To sound a poem worthy thee Requires a genius like thine own."

The translation of the Latin ode (Horace, Corin. III., 9), which appears in the same number is unusually good. The translator (we presume that he is a student) seems to catch the spirit of the poem admirably, and we will be glad to see more from the same pen. We leave to more competent critics the comparison of this with Mr. Gladstone's translation of the same ode.

The Dalhousie Gazette is on deck as usual with a first-class number. The Convocation address by Prof. Macdonald, dealing with some of the most pressing questions of college life, is worthy the perusal of every student.

UNIVERSITY DAY.

THE formal opening of the University for the session of '92-'93 took place in Convocation Hall on Monday evening, Oct. 17th. Of citizens there was a fair attendance, while the gallery proved wholly insufficient to accommodate the students who turned out. It is to be regretted that the committee which had been appointed to insure order admitted several outsiders, who not only occupied seats to the exclusion of students, but made themselves objectionable in other ways. Their presence was in great part the cause of the unwonted uproar which proceeded from the gallery, and called down the just censure of the Principal.

The first business was the presentation by Mrs. Grant of the prizes won in the sports during the day. Through a regrettable misunderstanding the 'Varsity delegates were not present, but received their presents subsequently.

The first speaker was Prof. Shortt, who delivered his inaugural address, a lucid and interesting talk on the principles of political science. Prof. Marshall then gave an eloquent account of his visit to the ter-centenary celebration of Trinity University, Dublin, and of the history of that institution, after which the Principal spoke as follows:—

"It is my duty to note publicly any events related to the interests we represent, that have transpired since the Convocation in April last. The first of these is the Convocation of the Medical Faculty. On this point the Chancellor spoke with his usual felicity of phrase last Friday night, and I need add only a word or two to the students in medicine. Gentlemen, the change has brought us closer together. I hope you like it on that account. I do. Henceforth, I am your Principal in reality. I pray God for added strength to enable me to discharge my new duties, and I ask you to trust me. I shall try to deserve your trust. Scarcely had the Faculty been formed when we were called on to mourn the loss of one of its most valued members, the late Dr. Wm. H. Henderson. The Faculty has already expressed its high sense of his character and services, but I may say for the consolation of the students who loved him, that he bore his sufferings with quiet heroism, and that he died in the faith."

After paying an eloquent tribute to the late Donald Cameron, '92, the Principal went on to speak of our gains:

"We have to welcome a large and promising freshman class, besides a number of post-graduate students. Nothing proves more clearly the character of the work done at Queen's, and the esteem in which the best students hold their professors, than the fact that men return to prosecute their studies further, after having gained their degrees with honors, although we have almost no pecuniary aid to offer them, and they know that they can get that by crossing the line. Long may this spirit animate them! The Registrar has just handed me the following returns: Freshmen in Arts, 63; total number registered, on University Day, in Arts (1891), 196; total number registered on University Day in Arts, (1892), 200. We are on the up-grade still, as we have been since 1870.

"A year ago, the Hon. Senator Gowan, LL.D., whose services in connection with the codifying of our laws have again received the highest recognition, sent me a cheque for $500 to be the nucleus of a fund for establishing a suitable memorial of Sir John A. Macdonald in connection with Queen's. I have received recently a further donation of $446 from an old friend of the late Sir John A. Macdonald for the same object. No canvass will be made for this fund, but I hope that it may become large enough to establish a lectureship in Political Science, bearing the name of the great statesman.

"I have noticed in the press that the late Mr. A. T. Fulton, of Toronto, once a partner in business of the always lamented Mr. James Michie, remembered Queen's in his will, leaving a legacy of $3,000 that will honorably perpetuate his name. The late Mr. John Roberts, of Ottawa, has also bequeathed to the University $40,000, to be applied as his executors or the representatives of his estate shall specify. Mr. Roberts was one of those Scotchmen who have given to Canadians during life an example of forethought, industry, business ability and high intelligence, and have also shown their strong faith in education and the highest possible mental development. All honor to such men! One thing only I could wish, that they were living to see the fruit their benefactions are bearing.

"We have received notice of another gift, to which I refer with peculiar satisfaction. Her Majesty's Commissioners for the Exhibition of 1851 have informed the Senate 'that they have recently instituted a number of science scholarships, to be held by students of not less than three years' standing, who have indicated high promise of capacity for advancing science or its applications,' and that they place the nomination to one of these scholarships of the annual value of £150 sterling at the disposal of the Senate for the year 1893. The student to whom it is awarded will hold it for 1894 also, should the report concerning him for the first year be satisfactory. 'The Commissioners hope to place a similar scholarship at the disposal of Queen's University, Kingston, for the year 1895, and thenceforth periodically.' I may mention that nineteen Universities and Colleges in the British Islands, four in Canada and four in Australia are included in the list that the Commissioners think worthy of receiving these splendid gifts. Such a recognition of institutions in Canada and Australia from such a quarter is a form of Imperial Federation that no one will object to. It is University Union, and may be a prelude to Commercial Union within the Empire. Where there is already Political Union, why should there not be union all along the line? We need scholarships of the same kind in literature and philosophy, 'not to facilitate attendance on ordinary collegiate studies, but to enable students who have passed through a college career to continue their studies.' May we not look to Canadians to supply these? The late James Michie intended to have endowed one of this kind, but his untimely death defeated the patriotic purpose. Her Majesty's Commissioners place 'no restriction as to the place of continued study and research to which the student may resort, . . . but a scholar is expected to spend at least one year of the term at an institution other than that by which he is nominated.'

"An important meeting was held in the course of the summer, in the Council Chamber, at which representative men of all shades of political opinion from the counties round Kingston expressed their sense of the urgent need of a School of Applied Science for Eastern Ontario. This matter has been pressed on the Government for years, and the meeting decided on immediate action. A large and influential committee was appointed to consider what steps should be taken first, and it has been resolved to organize a society with a capital of $20,000 and begin work at once with a School of Mining and Agriculture. One has only to look at the map accompanying the last report on the mineral resources of Ontario to see that Kingston is the natural site for a School of Mines. The University has done enough to show the demand that there is for practical instruction in mineralogy, metallurgy, and assaying, and the work must stop instead of being developed as it ought to be into a School of Mines, unless it is now taken up by such an independent board of public-spirited men as the meeting contemplated, aided by the Government and the surrounding municipalities. From the grant which the Legislature unanimously voted last session for an assaying school that is to be established in Port Arthur it is evident that a policy has been inaugurated of assisting educational enterprises that develop our national resources, and no part of the country deserves or would repay such an expenditure so well as that which lies to the north and northwest of us. The University is interested in such a school, through the demand from many students for practical scientific training, but we are all directly interested in the development of the Province, and therefore nothing that I can do to ensure the success of a School of Mining and Agriculture will be left undone. The character of the men who took part in the public meeting or who have since taken an interest in the matter is sufficient guarantee that it will now be prosecuted vigorously, and I believe that the effect, educationally and as far as regards the utilizing of our undeveloped resources, will be marked. I trust that the amount needed for beginning the work will be subscribed before the New Year."

The chair was now taken by Vice-Principal Williamson, and then, with a few appropriate remarks, Mr. R. V. Rogers unveiled a bust of the Principal, the work of Mr. Hamilton MacCarthy, the celebrated Toronto sculptor. This is a gift to the College of the Hon. James MacLennan, chairman of the Board of Trustees. The Convocation was then closed, Dr. Williamson pronouncing the benediction.

After the Convocation about three hundred of the students assembled in front of the college building and formed up for a parade. They were well supplied with torches and headed by the 14th battalion bugle band paraded the principal streets for two hours. Rupert Dupuis, mounted on a bay charger, acted as grand marshal, and the parade was also enlivened by the music of the bag pipes, which were played by Mr. MacLennan. Some of the members of the senior year followed the band in a waggonette. During the parade Doctors Sullivan, Dupuis, Fowler and others of the faculty were serenaded.

The one unfortunate fact was that of the torches taken out, a large percentage "never came back." Students getting tired carrying them, would give them to small boys to hold, the result of course being that in many cases the kid made off with the torch.

A. M. S.

Of all the meetings this year that held on Saturday evening was the largest. The speeches, in which many of the older members and some who had been absent for some time took part, were interesting. It is always advantageous to the members if subjects which cause much discussion come up every night. The members of '96 and all those who enter Queen's for the first time were enrolled as members, and now since they are members they should endeavour to get as much good as possible from these meetings. Even though a student takes no part in the debates and proceedings it will be a benefit to him in his future life to be present and look on. All the students were invited by Mr. Johnston to his chrysanthemum show from Nov. 7th to 12th.

Mr. Hugo's motion re the debate with McGill was referred to a committee. Many members thought it would be better to spend as much as possible on the Inter year debates in our own college. It might also be possible to get up a debate between the Royal and Queen's.

A motion was also passed granting the ladies a sum of money for their Reading Room. The speeches on this motion abounded with praise of the ladies for their kind aid in conversaciones, receptions and elections.

DIVINITY HALL.

The formal opening of Divinity Hall took place on Wednesday evening in the English Class-Room. Professor Mowat gave an account of the proceedings of the Pan-Presbyterian Council, recently held in Toronto. A few facts mentioned by Dr. Mowat may be interesting in this column. The Council represented ninety-one denominations of the Presbyterian system, and twenty millions people.

The influences of the Council may be summarized as:

1. Promotion of unity in regard to congregations and Home Mission work.
2. Prevention of persecution in foreign countries.
3. Weak churches are inspired to better effort by the knowledge that they belong to such a mighty army.

Dr. Mowat gave a brief sketch of the work actually done at the Council, dealing with the questions of Foreign Missions, Higher Criticism, Labor and Capital, etc. On all of these questions good papers were read, followed by vigorous discussions.

At the conclusion of Professor Mowat's address, Principal Grant made a few remarks indicating some weak points in the Council.

The time allotted to the essayists was uncertain and unsatisfactory. But apart from the management of the business when the Council was in actual session, it was noted that scarcely any of the great writers and leaders of thought in the church were present as delegates. While such denominational Councils were productive of some good, they were suggestive of a much greater need,—the need for a mighty inter-denominational gathering which would help to unite the divided sections of the Christian Church.

Last year's class in Theology was a famous one, and the men of '92 will be greatly missed by us this session. We will have to struggle on without the superintendence of Bishop or Patriarch. These good men are now far away, but we will always remember with gratitude their exemplary walk and conversation, and fatherly interest in all that concerned Divinity Hall and the Y. M. C. A.

Rev. R. C. H. Sinclair, B.A., '88, after a year's pastorate in Bay City, Michigan, has returned to his Alma Mater for post graduate work in Philosophy and English. Welcome back, Bob!

The ranks of Divinity Hall are broken! Some of the students think that Rev. James Madill should succeed to the Patriarchal office, while the claims of James Hodges, B.A., are being pushed by his many friends. The only aspirant to the Bishopric is James Rollins, and it is conceded by all that he possesses the scriptural qualifications for that office.

D. G. S. Connery, B.A., has been appointed Lecturer in Elocution, and classes have already begun. It is to be hoped that the class will be very successful. There can be no doubt that a great deal of failure in the pulpit is due to the lack of elocutionary training; and it is, therefore, the duty of every student to secure that training when he has opportunity.

Our last meeting was led by Matthew Wilson, who took for his subject: "Watchfulness," 1 Cor. xvi. 13. After a short talk on the need of watchfulness, he was followed by a number of speakers, who brought out a variety of aspects of our dangers. It was interesting throughout and thoroughly enjoyed by all.

We might say here that our meetings are for all the boys, and we should be glad to have you drop in on Friday afternoon.

W. M. C.

Miss Grace Wafer has returned, thus adding one more to the third year, which now consists of five students.

Dr. Elizabeth Beatty, one of the first graduates of our college, who spent seven years in medical missionary work in Indore, India, has started a practice in Brantford.

(Dr. to patient):—Here's a capsule of quinine to be taken before bedtime.

(Dr. to patient next morning):—Did you do as I directed you?

(Patient):—Yes, sir, and here is the little glass box.

Our graduates of '92. Dr. Agnes M. Turnbull is en route for Indore, India, where she intends to engage in medical missionary work.

Doctors M. Henderson and Nellie Skimmin have located in Hamilton and Dr. Alison Jamieson in London.

FOOTBALL.

On Saturday, Nov. 5th, the class of '96 played the Collegiate Institute, and for the first time in many years the Freshmen were victorious by a score of 15 to 2. When the players lined up at 11 a.m. it was evident that the Freshmen were much heavier than their opponents, though not in as good condition. In the first half the score was 11 to 0 in favour of the Freshmen. In the second half the Collegiate obtained two rouges, while '96 secured another try. For the Freshmen Irving and Turnbull played an excellent game at half back. The latter is new to the game, but will develop into a first-class half-back, as he runs, kicks and catches very well. McLennan and McLaren played well on the wing.

'94 VS. '95.

This was the first of the series of inter-year contests, and occurred on the campus on Saturday afternoon. '94 played nearly the same team as last year, and gave a very fine exhibition of football. The passing and running of their back division was much admired. Horsey at centre half, although unaccustomed to the position, played a fine game and would fill the position satisfactorily in first-class matches. Moffatt did excellent work in the scrimmage, never failing to get the ball out to his quarter. What a pity he could not be prevailed on to occupy that position on the first fifteen and strengthen our weakest point! '94's wings held their men easily and gave their backs plenty of opportunities. '95 played a very plucky game, considering the fact that their opponents were nearly all first and second team men. McCammon, Baker, Back, Burton and Watson all did great work. The score at the end of time was 33 to 7 in favour of '94.

The competition examination for the Gaelic Scholarship will be held in the moderns class room on Saturday, Nov. 12, at 10 o'clock. It might be suggested that all candidates be asked to write and translate our college yell.

On Oct. 5th, the class of '93 held their first meeting after assuming rank and reverence as seniors. The following were elected officers of the class society:—

A. Haydon, President.
Miss N. O'Dell, Vice President.
J. W. McIntosh, Sec'y-Treas.
D. W. Best, Historian.
W. L. Grant, Poet.
J. R. Frazer, Prophet.
J. D. McLennan, Lord-high-cock-a-lorum.

'94 reorganized with the following officers:

Vice President—Miss Russell.
Secretary—R. Herbison.
Historian—J. Johnson.
Poet—M. B. Tudhope.
Orator—H. Horsey.
Critic—J. W. Mitchell.
Marshal—R. Asselstine.

Ivan Watson Herbison was elected an honorary member.

Mr. McColl has joined the class.

'94 will meet every third Thursday at five o'clock.

So many have been or are engaged in Ladies' Colleges that perhaps we have in this the source of such a large number of ladies in the Freshman year.

J. D. Miller, Freshman of last year, has entered Queen's College, Kingston. We'll miss his rosy countenance much, but it is said the ladies will miss him more.—Dalhousie Gazette.

THE LATE MRS. KILBORN.

Seldom has a message come with more saddening shock to the many students of Queen's than that which flashed from China, last May, the unexpected news of Mrs. Kilborn's death. She was the youngest daughter of Professor Fowler, and had graduated in Arts in April, 1890. Shortly after she married Dr. Kilborn, and with every prospect of long life and happiness had sailed with him to engage in her chosen work as Missionary in China. But God ordained otherwise.

To her sister and father, and to Dr. Kilborn, the JOURNAL offers on behalf of the students its deepest sympathy. As one of the first officers of the Levana Society her picture hangs in the girls' reading room, and many a companion has turned away with dim eyes from contemplation of that bright face, yet feeling that, though young to go, Jennie could truthfully say with the saintly Whittier:—

"And so beside the silent sea
I wait the muffled oar:
No harm can come from Him to me
On ocean or on shore.
I know not where His Islands lift
Their fronded palms in air:
I only know I cannot drift
Beyond His love and care."

IN MEMORIAM.

MRS. KILBORN (JENNIE FOWLER, B.A.)

Why should we grudge our fairest and our best!
Can we not trust the promise she held dear,
Who followed, meekly, to the gates of rest,
His bidding, without fear?

Thank God for Faith that knows no space, nor time;
As near His love she was in far Cathay
As when, in hearing of the Sabbath chime
She knelt a child, to pray.

What matters whether crimson stricken leaves,
Or strange far grasses hide her place of rest?
Who sleep in Christ care little what earth heaves
Its turf above their breast.

—E. J. M.

THE LATE DR. W. H. HENDERSON.

Scarcely had the new Medical Faculty been formed when it was compelled to lament the untimely loss of one of its most valued members, Dr. Wm. H. Henderson, Professor of Clinical Medicine.

Dr. Henderson was born in Kingston, Oct. 6th, 1856. In 1879 he graduated in Medicine at the head of his class, after which he took a long and distinguished course in the Medical Schools of Britain and the continent. Shortly after his return he was appointed Professor at the Royal, a position he held until his death.

Though a young man he was widely and favorably known among the members of his profession, being in 1888 unanimously appointed President of the Ontario Medical Association. His death was caused by Bright's disease, brought on by overwork and lack of rest. The disease first became manifest in May, but he continued his professional work till the 26th of July, after which its course was rapid till August 13th, the date of his death.

Dr. Henderson was well known by all in the city as a genial, lovable, Christian man. With his students he was a great favorite, and took a personal interest in each one; his memory will long live in their hearts, alike as friend and Professor.

Shortly after College closed last April, all students were grieved to hear of the death of Donald Cameron of the class of '92. There was not a man more beloved in the whole University. Distinguished in his studies, and the champion athlete of the College, he yet ever acted in the spirit of meekness and humility. In the course of his address on University day, the Principal said: "Let us also refer to the loss we have sustained in the death of Mr. Donald Cameron, a man with the frame of a giant and the tenderness and purity of a child. I thank his fellow-students for their thoughtfulness and generosity in providing funds to send his body home to Prince Edward Island, under the care of his friend, Mr. D. D. MacDonald. It was an unspeakable comfort to his aged mother and to all his sorrowing relatives and friends. His brother sends the warmest acknowledgements, and says, 'We feel the bereavement very sorely, but comfort ourselves with the knowledge that he who has been taken away from us died in the Lord.'"

COLLEGE NOTES.

A. Walker, '94, is back again after a year's absence.

A number of new wardrobes will shortly be made. All the old ones are already taken up.

W. J. Herbison, '94, has been ill for some time and unable to attend classes.

Several footballers of '95 suffered more or less severe injuries in the match last Saturday.

The class of '94 rejoices in the possession of a baby. He is son and heir of Mr. W. J. Herbison, and was admitted an honorary member of the year at their last meeting.

It now remains to be seen how the ladies will use the grant of the A. M. S. in decorating their reading room. No doubt they will have the "mail."

"The ladies should have the advantage of a reading room, as well as of the male students."—D. W. B-st.

Please F. A. McRae or C. D. Campbell take me to the Missionary Association.—G. F. McD-nn-l.

I'm opposed alike to principal and principle.—W. L. Gr-t.

Osgoode play a magnificent combination game. I saw five consecutive passes.—Parvulissimus Smythe.

Prof. Dyde says that the only sign of Philosophy as yet visible in his class is that they are lost in wonder.

The officers of the concursus met last week. Now is the time to consider the deeds of the past and atone for them. A week of self-examination.
